The collage displays ten international certification certificates, arranged in two rows of five. Each certificate is a formal document from a recognized certification body, such as TÜV, SGS, and Bureau Veritas, attesting to the compliance of a specific product or service with international standards. The certificates include details such as the certificate number, the name of the certified entity, the scope of certification, and the validity period. The certificates are presented in a grid-like fashion, with each one clearly visible and legible.
